ANOTHER MANSLAUGHTER CASE MAY BE ADDED TO LONG LIST

William Grant Expected to Die as the Result of Injury Received

ALLEGED ASSAILANT MISSING

John Vegso Claimed to be Wanted Man And Police are Looking For Him—One Man Now Out on Bond —Fight Took Place on Hill.

Another man slaughter case may be added to the already long list in the county if the expected happens. The expected is the death of William Grant of Tenth street and Prospect alley, who it is claimed received mortal injuries in a fight February 27 with John Vegso, also of Charleroi. Vegso has never been apprehended.

It is related that the two men on the night of February 27 had a quarrel and adjourned to the hill district in the vicinity of Shady avenue and Third street to fight it out. Arriving there it is further stated they agreed not to fight and shook hands. But that did not end the affair. Grant was felled, according to the story which reached the police by the use of a plank and John Vegso is blamed.

Grant was removed to the Charleroi-Monessen hospital in an unconscious condition. He received all the attention that physicians and nurses could give him to save his life, and after a time seemed to improve in health. He was removed to his home and then it is said contracted blood poisoning and his death is now expected.

Nick Vegso, a brother of John Vegso was placed under arrest and under bond, but so far there has been no trace of John. The police are working to locate him that he may be held in case of Grant's death. Grant's father lives at Fairhope and he is intent upon seeing that justice is done. The younger Grant was married and has two children. He was employed as a snapper at the Charleroi mine of the Carnegie Coal company. John Vegso was a glass worker employed at a local factory.

MAN SENT TO HOSPITAL AFTER FALL FROM COAL CHUTE SCAFFOLD

Brownsville Man Suffers Injuries About Head and Face—Three Lacerations to Skull Among Worst.

In a fall of 15 or more feet from a scaffold at the Carnegie Coal company plant this morning, John Miller of Brownsville, received injuries about the face and head, and was taken to the Charleroi-Monessen hospital. Miller was on the scaffold helping erect a coal chute that the Fort Pitt Construction company is constructing, when he lost his balance and fell headlong.

He sustained three lacerations of his skull and was rather badly shaken up and bruised. The result of his injuries will not be made known for about a day, but it is not thought he is seriously hurt.

PASSION PLAY LECTURE TO BE GIVEN BY EVANGELIST

Tonight at the Fifth street tabernacle Evangelist Minges will lecture on "The Passion Play." What is known as "The Passion Play" is reproduced at Oberammergau every ten years by a company of players who devote their entire life to preparation for this religious work. The lecture tonight, which will begin at 8 o'clock will be illustrated by stereopticon views.

CHARLEROI MAN LEARNS OF BROTHER'S DEATH IN BATTLE LINE ON THE YPRES

James Williams Receives Sad News—Victim Had Just Concluded Five Days' Service in the Trenches When Caught by Bursting Shell

James Williams, a machinist, employed at the local plant of the Macbeth-Evans Glass company, and a man prominent in the masonic fraternity, has learned of the death of his brother, R. Williams, who was killed in b attle at Ypres, on the Belgian front on March 11. Mr. Williams has received the following clipping:

"Sergeant S. Williams of the 9th Battalion Royal Irish Rifles, has been notified of the death of his brother Trooper R. Williams, of the 6th Innskilling Dragons. The deseased had served with his regiment in India, and at the outbreak of the wark with Germany he was called on to rejoin the colors as a reservist. On going to the Continent he was attached dto the 1st Life Guards and it was while he was employed with the crack corps that he lost his life, being killed at Ypres on the 11th inst. He was very popular with his officers and comrades. In a letter to Sergeant Williams, who it may be mentioned is a member of the Belfast First Brigade, although now serving with the Ulster Division, Captain J. J. Astor, commanding a squadron of the 1st Life Guards, says that the deceased soldier was killed instantly, together with fi ve other men, by the busting of a shell. Captain Astor adds: 'We had just done five days in the trenches, and at the time were in billets, which makes it seem all the more cruel luck. I have nothing but good to say of him, and I know we have lost a gallant soldier in him.'"

Mr. Williams, the Charleroi man has lived here about six years having come from Canada.

ALL CATHOLIC PEOPLE PRAY ON PASSION SUNDAY FOR TERMINATION OF PRESENT WAR

Special Services Held at Which Prayer Composed by Pope Benedict is Offered---Rev. Fries in Charge at St. Jerome's Church

Peace Day was observed in all Catholic churches of the world on Sunday—Passion Sunday—and prayers were offered that the European war might be ended. At St. Jerome's Catholic church the Peace Day services were carried out in their entirity, the same as at other points. Rev. W. D. Fries, pastor was in charge with Rev. B. N. Axmacher, asisstant pastor, assisting.

The peace service began with high mass in the morning and there were services during the day, ending with Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament at night. The peace prayer composed by Pope Benedict XV was said. Crowds thronged the Catholic churches, and the observance was characterized by unusual solemity.

In all Catholic churches at the close of the last mass Sunday morning, the Blessed Sacrament was places in the monstrances and was thus left exposed for the adoration of the congregations. After the benediction at night the sacred host was replaced in the tabernacles.

W. FRED SMITH ELECTED DEMOCRATIC CHAIRMAN

Washington Man Chosen to Lead Destinies of County Organization at Meeting on Saturday afternoon at The County Seat.

After being divided into factions which wrought internal strife, the Washington county Democratic party was reunited Saturday afternoon when W. Fred Smith of Washington was elected county chairman. Mr. Smith was elected on the eighsixtenth ballot changed from T. last Tuesday.

The men from the river district in Saturday's meeting still held that the chairman should be from that district, but Washington representatives held for a county seat official. J. M. Paterson and S. A. Barnum held the same votes as when the meeting adjourned Tuesday, Patterson h aving received six while Barnum received seven. Knox still held the deciding vote but on the sixteenth ballot c hanged from T. Jeff Duncan to Dr. J. W. Manon of Charleroi.

On the eighteenth ballot H. A. Sheaff of Canonsburg, opened for Smith and seven other votes followed. This was then made unanimous for Smith.

FIRST RIVER BAPTISM IN YEARS TAKES PLACE

Two Immersions Take Place Saturday Afternoon at Charleroi Bathing Beach—Scores Witness Rite, Performed by Rev. Duty.

Scores of people lined the shore of the Monongahela river at the Charleroi bathing beach Saturday afternoon when the first river baptism here in years took place. Mrs. Henry Sheets was baptised and after her Roy Athey, her nephew.

Rev. E. N. Duty, pastor of the First Christian church performed the rite. Evangelist William J. Minges offered prayer as Mrs. Sheets prepared for the immersion, and the people on the shore sang two songs, "Nearer My God to Thee," and "Oh, Happy Day." Rev. Duty led her into the water, while the evangelist prayed. Then similarly after her immersion came that of the baptism of the boy. Both were hurried away by auto to the Sheets' home on Fifth street.

HARD BLOWS HANDED LIQUOR TRAFFIC BY THE EVANGELIST

HELD UP AND ROBBED BY MEN WHO WILLINGLY COUNT MONEY

Canonsburger is Victim of Polite Burglars in Pittsburg, Who Return His Kid Gloves.

Returning to his home in Canonsburg, after collecting rent C. M. Greer, a real estate man, formerly with the Pittsburg Coal company, was robbed in Bower Hill Saturday afternoon. He was walking toward the railroad to catch a train home when a man stepped from concealment and pointing a revolver at him ordered him to throw up his hands. Instead Greer backed away, but another man from behind o rdered him to stop. The robbers relieved him of $24.50 in cash a gold watch and chain, valued at $100, and a pear stick pin studded with diamonds.

The burglars counted the money, when told that Greer was a recent collector and desired to know, then returned his kid glove.

MRS. ROLEY DIES AT BELLE VERNON

Death of Son in Accident With Previous Illness the Assigned Cause

WAS WIDOW OF JACOB ROLEY

Shock caused by the death of her son Joseph T. Roley in an automobile accident at Uniontown four weeks ago today, with the combined effects of a previous illness, caused the death at Belle Vernon this morning of Mrs. Hannah E. Roley, aged 75 years, the widow of the late Jacob Roley. Mrs. Roley had been in ill health for some time preceding the death of her son. That fatal accident caused her to grow worse, until death came.

In the family are one son and five daughters who survive. The son is William H. Roley, of Belle Vernon, and the daughters: Mrs. Albert Sphar of Maple Creek; Mrs. Charles Reed, of Pittsburg; Mrs. Oscar Brawdy of Brownsville; and Misses Jennie and Jessie Roley at home.

"A MODERN MAGDALEN" AT THE PALACE TONIGHT

One of the best releases thus far on the Alliance program is "A Modern Magdalen," which will be shown at the Palace tonight. In the leading roles are Catherine Countiss and Lionel Barrymore. The picture is the story of a poor girl who yearning for luxuries proceeds to live a gay, reckless life. After years of wickedness she reforms and finds that the love of the poor is more to be desired than the luxuries of the rich. The picture is one of a great moral teaching sounding a note of warning to girls who would sacrifice all for pleasure.

Strong Sermon on "Booze" Delivered to Big Audience at Tabernacle

PLEDGE IS TAKEN TO FIGH

Local People to Combat Drink Business—Sunday Evening Sermon "Satan's Defeat"—Musical Features Are Much Enjoyed.

Fifteen hundred people comprising many of the best known people of the community stood with Evangelist Minges at the Fifth street tabernacle Sunday afternoon and pledged themselves to fight the drink traffic with might and main. This was the climax of a wonderful meeting that was featured by the best address the evangelist has made since coming to Charleroi. His subject was "Booze." Speaking to an audience that completely filled the big tabernacle he spent an hour presenting powerful arguments as to why the liquor business should be banished from the land. The trade was roundly denounced.

Sunday evening at the tabernacle another big crowd was present, the number present then being if anything more than at the afternoon meeting. The evangelist's sermon theme was "Satan's Defeat." The day closed with several conversions and the total number at the meetings thus far was brought up to about 600.

The afternoon meeting was opened by Song Leader Rockwell who conducted the singing of "The Red White and Blue." Prayer was offered by Rev. W. G. Carl, and pictures were taken by a local photographer of the scene. A clipping on the temperance work in the nation was read by Rev. E. N. Duty on "The Economic Issue," and then the fires of oratory were turned loose by the evangelist. Several responded at the conclusion when then the invitation for conversions was given.

Song Leader Rockwell opened the evening service by asking for prayer by H. J. Bray, of the evangelistic company. Musical features during the course of the opening service included a duet by Mrs. Roland Todd and Miss Georgia Parson, chorus numbers by the choir and a song by the evangelistic male quartet.

On Saturday night the evangelist preached on "Shall we Know Each Other in Heaven" to a big crowd. The sermon was a good one, and the service was much enjoyed.

Sunday morning a short church service followed the Sunday school at the tabernacle. During the Sunday school hour the evangelistic party visited the First Christian church at Monongahela.

Tonight will be the night of a lecture on "The Paassion Play" at the tabernacle, stereopticon slides to be shown.

Booze.

The synopsis of the address of Sunday afternoon follows: Cain asked God if he was his brother's keeper he sought to justify himself with God even with the blood of his brother on his hands. God is asking us to answer Cain's question today, because men are doing the same thing today dragging their brother's bodies

BEWARE THE APRIL SNOW

According to the astronomical harps winter has officially ended and ring officially began. But that litte bit of astronomically backed information does not mean that winter annels and overcoats may now be id aside with impunity. There is ill to be reckoned with the possiility of the April snow, says the ashington Reporter.

Too many people rely all too much these fixed weather figures. They t the notion that because spring ofially begins on a certain day they ist dress and live in accordance th what they conceive to be the ring idea. The result is they g rch unprepared for the weather anges which come at this season d quite frequently acquire such noyances as colds, pneumonia, or attention of the undertaker.

March is an uncertain month and ril has gained the reputation of de jade. Quite frequently, if memserves correctly, there have been d snaps in late March and early ril and the April snow has come to recognized as an expectancy. The e wise individual will not rely olly on what the astronomical perss say about the beginning of ing. He will be satisfied to have ing begin, but at the same time will exercise particular care in his ner of dress and in his means of fecting himself against the weaconditions. Too blind following fixed dates for season may result erious difficulties for the follower.

DARK BREAD.

On his way back to ar he heard a loud and lusty crowing and soon found that the chick had grown into full and vigorous roosterhood. The man went back upstairs to obtain more thorough food for such a bird and when he returned to the cellar he found that the rooster had died of senility. The hens in the other eggs had died of old age before they had a chance to break their shells.

Two nurse-maids were wheeling their infant charges in the park when one asked the other:

"Are you going to the dance tomorrow afternoon?"

"I am afraid not."

"Won't!" exclaimed the other. "And you so fond of dancing!"

"I'd love to go," explained the conscientious maid, "but to tell you the truth, I am afraid to leave the baby with its mother."

Our Daily Special.

You can run into debt, but you have to crawl out.

Luke McLuke Says:

A man never discovers that he doesn't know a woman until after he marries her.

The old fashioned old maid who used to wear corkscrew curls now has a bachelor girl niece who sends her hair out every now and then and has a permanent wave put in it.

You can find out more about a man's real nature by going to a poker game with him than you can by going to a prayer meeting with him.

Some men sit down all day and whine that luck is against them. And then they wonder why they do not make good.

The married woman who stays home and does her own housework may have rough hands. But her conscience is usually smoother than that of the married dame who paints up and gads around town all day.

Some men have no sympathy with the poor because they believe that people should not permit their appetites to outgrow their incomes.

We are always willing to forgive those who trespass against others.

What has become of the old fashioned woman who used to open a can of tomatoes with hot coals?

There is only one way to get wisdom, but there are 900,000,000 ways to make a fool of yourself.

Things are not arranged right in this world. The Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will arrest a man who beats a horse, but it doesn't take any action against a woman who kisses a dog.

If a woman would try to make as much of an impression on her husband when she is at home as she tries to make on strangers when she is out there wouldn't be so many unhappy marriages.

I may be an iconoclast, but I want to put you wise to something. The fellow who carries a cane isn't a blame bit more important than you are.

When mother whips the children father tries to be absolutely neutral. But when father whips them mother kisses them and tells father that it is a shame to beat the poor children because they can't help the fact that they inherited their ornerryness from their father.

And as for the spring styles in female headgear! All the samples we have seen thus far look as though they were designed by a cubist artist when he was suffering from the d. t.'s.

Mother can always remember daughter's birthday, but she always manages to forget her own.

Stars In the Daytime.

"Where are the stars in the daytime?" a child asked, and the wise man said:

"The stars in the daytime are just where they are at night, and if something could be put over the sun we should see them again. Something is put over the sun sometimes, for the moon comes in the way, so that for a time he cannot be seen, even though it is daytime and there are no clouds in the sky. When that happens one of the most wonderful things in the world is to see the stars 'come out again.' They were there all the time, shining as brightly as ever, but the sun is so very much brighter to us, because he is so very much nearer to us, that we could not see them.

"When you are listening to thunder or to a cannon you do not hear the quiet sound of your own breathing, although the thunder is far away and the breathing is near, and just as the great noise swallows up the little sound so the great light of the sun swallows up the little light of the stars."—Kansas City Star.

The Falklands.

Buried in banks of fog, drenched in drizzling rains, swept by bitter winds from the Antarctic, the Falkland islands are surely the most dismal of Great Britain's family of organized colonies. The rain ceases only when the wind blows the fiercest, the fog hangs low and heavy except when the gales whip it to shreds. It is a treeless land, part barren rocks and part grassy slopes A day of sunshine is a rare joy Tierra del Fuego is its nearest neighbor. The people, some 2,000 in number, are sturdy descendants of Scotch immigrants, and the sheep that browse on the eternally damp hills are their only source of revenue. Yet there is a capital, a government and a governor duly appointed by the crown and sent to suffer virtual exile for a time among the moist shepherds of the antipodes The Falkland islands appeal to the imagination as the remotest, loneliest and least desirable of all lands inhabited by Europeans.—Cleveland Plain Dealer

Conscription.

With the exception of the one occasion in 1863, when the quotas of the states did not fill up as rapidly as desired, there has been no conscription in the United States. The draft riot in New York was the outcome of this conscription, and, as it happened, the muster rolls were filled in the meantime without need of the men originally drafted.

Conscription was ruthless at one time in England The worst form of conscription was employed in connection with recruiting the navy in Nelson's time. No one was safe from attack by the redoubtable press gangs, and the victories of this glorious epoch of England's history were won in part by men who often kicked and bit and tussled to break away from the gangs that hurled them into the navy.—New York Sun

Harder Than Diamonds.

Although the diamond is generally regarded as the hardest of all substances it is a fact that there is a substance even harder. This is a metal known as tantalum, a rare metal, although not one of the rarest. Just how hard it is may be imagined when it is mentioned that a thin sheet of it was once placed under a diamond drill worked day and night for three days. The only effect was a slight indentation in the tantalum and the wearing out of the diamond Tantalum is very difficult to produce, but when it can be obtained in sufficient quantities it will be an exceedingly useful substance. Among its other uses it will be employed to cut diamonds and to make filaments for electric lamps. It is one of the few substances that are hard without being brittle.

The "Death Watch."

The so called "death watch," with its mysterious ticking at night time, is due to nothing more serious than the furniture beetle. The larva of this insect burrows in the furniture, making the pin holes which are often to be seen in old furniture. It is three years in its pupa condition and at length becomes a little brown insect with a great talent for shamming death, so that it is not very much observed. These beetles often strike the wood of their galleries with their heads, and so produce a ticking sound which is a call to the mate.

Slightly Sarcastic.

"I am convinced that in many respects I resemble George Washington," said the pompous man.

"It seems unfair," replied Miss Cayenne, "that an accident of chronology should have placed you at such a disadvantage. Merely because Washington was born first people say you resemble him instead of saying he resembles you. It really seems unfair."—Washington Star.

Pretty Expensive Steak.

The highest known price ever paid for beef steak was at Circle City, Alaska, a town that sprang up almost in the night during the Klondike gold excitement. The first steak to reach there sold for $48 a pound. It was a ten pound steak and was sent from a point fifty miles away. It was placed on exhibition and was such a curiosity that all the miners turned out in a body to see it.

Of course every one wanted a piece of the precious meat, and the prices offered might have resulted in a general mêlée except that no one thought of selling the steak for the benefit of a hospital which a bishop was trying to establish for the miners at Circle City. Bids started at $5 a pound and rose quickly to $35. At last, in order to avoid possible trouble, it was decided to sell tickets at prices ranging from 50 cents to $2.50 for the privilege of drawing a slice. After $480 worth of tickets had been sold the drawing began, and to the relief of those in charge of the enterprise no serious consequences resulted.—Detroit Free Press.

Read Your Books Again.

Let me implore any reader who has a fairly large library of his own and is honestly anxious to know what his books contain to devote some period of leisure to go through these volumes, shelf by shelf, as they stand, to learn which of them he can remember well, which are half read or unread. What pleasure and profit he would find in recalling the poetry he once so enjoyed or in turning to such essays as he had hitherto overlooked! He would find, I am sure, that the very things he long wanted to know, the poetry that had almost faded from his memory, the bursts of eloquence and prophecy that had stirred his youth, now grown dim in his mind as "an ancient tale, although the words were strong." All this had stood silent and unnoticed on his walls for years and years, while he had been stuffing himself with the last short story, the lives of royal laundry women or it may be an article in a magazine.—Frederic Harrison.

Germs and All.

A Louisville woman who is somewhat of a crank on hygiene and who brings up her small daughter according to the latest methods took the child on a day train to a nearby little town. The mother sighed as she glanced at the dusty velvet seat and cloudy windows The youngster, however, folded her manicured fingers in her white pique lap and apparently tried to absorb as little dirt as possible. Looking up from her magazine, the immaculate parent was horrified to find the small daughter's jaws working violently

"What have you in your mouth?" she demanded at once.

"Gum," said the child.

"Where did you get it?" gasped the mother

The child hoisted to a clean, round spot on the grimy windowsill.

"There," she said.—Louisville Times

Cost of a Horse.

It costs on an average $104 06 to raise a horse to the age of three years on the farms of Indiana and those of other states This price has been carefully figured by experts of the department of agriculture, who based their figures on those furnished by 10,000 correspondents scattered throughout the country

New Mexico can raise horses cheaper than the other states or at an average price of $69 50 In Massachusetts the raising of colts is more expensive than in any other state, the average horse at three years representing an investment of $141 80

Not to Be Repeated.

Shakespeare's contention that "there was never a philosopher who could endure the toothache patiently" was disproved by Canon Liddon After an experience that would have closed the mouths of most of us, Liddon found it possible to write to a friend: "I have been quite laid up with trouble with my few remaining teeth, of which I had five taken out the day before yesterday As only four remain, this particular experience cannot be repeated in this present life." This is a classic instance of the triumph of philosophy over pain.—London Globe.

The Atlantic Coast.

The eastern edge of the North American continent is overflowed by the sea, and that is why the water near the coast is so shallow. To find the true edge of the great continental land mass one would have to travel something like eighty miles due eastward from New York.

Geranium Oil.

Geranium oil is largely used in perfumery and is known as rose geranium, owing to the common practice of adding rose petals to the plants before distillation.

Women of New Jersey and Pennsylvania

Imagination balks at the magnitude of $2,000,000. Only when it is translated into terms of purchasing power does it become comprehensible.

Two million dollars, for example, will support more than 2000 families of moderate income for a year.

Two million dollars will buy more than 200,000 barrels of flour, more than 50,000 sewing machines or 80,000 suits. It will give work for an entire year to 2000 men and women engaged in various productive industries and other occupations that add to the common welfare of the people in all walks of life.

It is $2,000,000 a year that the Full Crew—"excess man crew"—Laws compel the railroads of your States to pay in unearned wages. Laws deprive you of improvements for safety and comfort in travel that this money, now used unproductively, would provide.

How much longer in these times when economy is a universal necessity are you willing to endure this tremendous waste? In the end the cost bears upon you, either in increased rates or decreased service.

Will you use your influence in urging that the people's elected Representatives at Trenton and Harrisburg work and vote for repeal of the Full Crew Laws and place control of the proper manning of trains in the hands of the Public Service Commissioners?

Worry Kills More Men Than Fever

The workman who is continually worried over financial difficulties is carrying a double burden—he's worse than the man with walking typhoid fever. Horace Fletcher says "Worry is a sneak thief." It constantly steals the man's strength of mind and body. Eliminate the worry habit by starting a savings account with this bank, add a small percentage of your salary each pay day—it will care for those financial difficulties that come to the family from sickness and other misfortune.

A CUP OF COFFEE.

It Has No Value as Food, but It Has a Stimulating Effect.

The infusion of coffee presents practically very little material that is of direct nourishing value, says a writer in the London Tablet, but by diminishing nervous fatigue, by virtue chiefly of the caffeine present, it may increase muscular power. It is not itself a builder of tissue. The use of coffee after dinner, it is of interest to note, is justified in a large number of cases by the fact of its stimulating effect upon the vital centers, and it is said to serve to some extent as an antidote to alcohol.

It is commonly claimed to remove drowsiness. As a matter of fact, in many subjects it produces drowsiness, but this is usually followed by marked wakefulness. The practice of drinking coffee after a meal for the sake of the stimulus which is experienced has much to be said in its favor dietetically.

There is no reason for supposing that coffee possesses any value as a food. The berry contains a quite important proportion of fatty substances (12 per cent average), but these are necessarily excluded from the infusion, as, owing to their insolubility, they remain in the "grounds."

According to our analysis, the protein contents of a cup of coffee are small, approximating to 1.25 per cent of the coffee extracted. This amount can have little dietetic significance. There is also a trifling quantity of sugar present, besides traces of alcohol, which again can possess no importance from a physiological point of view.

WOOD FOR VIOLINS.

Maple Is the Best and Is What the Old World Famed Makers Used.

In the finest violins the body is made of white maple. In cheap ones violet ebony is used. In medium priced ones alternate leaves of the two are employed. The best wood of all is that of the epicea, a tree resembling a fir in general appearance, which grows in central and northern Europe, but musical instrument makers set special value on that from the Vosges mountains. Its wood is most homogeneous and has the advantage over all others that there is scarcely any difference between the sap wood and the heart.

Violet ebony, which comes from Brazil, Africa and India, is much used for pianos. True ebony is now so expensive that it is reserved for nuts and twisters.

Sycamore maple, somewhat less homogeneous than white maple and hence less sonorous, is employed chiefly in making mandolins.

The wood of trees from high altitudes and a severe climate is much better than that from plains and warmer countries for all purposes in which sonority is desired. And it should have had not less than 200 or 200 years of growth, and its concentric circles should be no more than two or three millimeters apart.

The ancient violin makers, Stradivarius, Amati, Guarnerius and the others, used the finest and best seasoned maple, and this, with their perfect varnish, is why their violins have lasted so long.—New York World.

The Seven Wise Men of Greece.

The seven wise men of Greece were Thales of Miletus, Periander of Corinth, Cleobulus of Lyndus, Chilon of Lacedaemon, Solon of Athens, Bias of Prienne and Pittacus of Mitylene. Some fishermen of Miletus sold a draft of fishes to a bystander. When the net was drawn in it contained a golden tripod, and the purchaser claimed it was his, while the fishermen contended that they sold only the fish that might be in the net. The dispute was referred to the oracle of Delphi, who awarded the tripod to the wisest man in Greece. Thereupon it was taken to Thales, who declined it and suggested that it be given to Bias. He in turn refused to accept it, and thus it was successively declined by all the seven, and they were thereafter known as the seven wise men of Greece.

Beltane.

In the highlands of Scotland and in Ireland May 1 was called Beltane. This was the name of an ancient pagan festival, traces of which have survived to this day. The name is still used for May day in Gaelic Scotland. It is said that the druids on that day used to make two fires with great incantations and drive their cattle between them as a safeguard against disease.

PICTURES OF BATTLES.

Warfare Has Always Been a Popular Subject For Artists.

From the earliest days of history war has given inspiration to the artist, and the work of his hands comes down to us on the walls of ancient Egypt, worn with the passing of thousands of years; from the ruined temples of antique Greece, built centuries before the Christian era. The picture writing of primitive and savage peoples describes exploits of war; many archaic war pictures, brought to view after ages of burial under desert sands, bear much similarity to Indian drawings of our own near time and land.

Once, years ago, away up on the Poplar river, in Montana, I bought—bartered for, I suppose I should say, as the purchase was made mainly by the medium of tea, tobacco and sugar—a "painted" robe right off the back of the war chief of a band of Yanktonnais-Sioux our troops had "rounded up" and brought into the agency. The skin was a fine "black bull," tanned on the underside to the softness of the finest chamois leather and decorated with naive pictorial representations of the deeds of war of old Kill-Them-In-a-Hole—as the soldiers translated the name given the chief from some episode in his murderous career—which in color, in grace and firmness of line were curiously like pictures from the pencil of some artist of the Egypt of old.

The glory of war is the theme: the exaltation of the sovereign, the conqueror, forms the chief motive of the war picture of antiquity. The monarch was the hero before whose terrible sword all foes gave way, to whom victory came through his personal might and prowess. The warriors of the Greeks are shown as models of virile strength and grace; their attitudes in the fury of combat lost nothing of artistic beauty in the realism of the rendering. The influence of the Greek masters of their art is evident in battle pictures of a time twoscore and more centuries later.—Rufus Fairchild Zogbaum in Scribner's.

MEDIEVAL PUNISHMENTS.

Queer Old Laws of England That Have Never Been Revoked.

Although the stocks, like the pillory and the ducking stool, have been done away with, a lot of punishments survive in England which are every bit as medieval.

The most ludicrous of these exist in the two services—the army and navy—which were renowned in the past for the cruelties practiced in them in the name of justice. "Keelhauling" as carried out in the navy used, of course, to amount to execution by drowning, while in the army "running the gauntlet" was a popular way of punishing troublesome soldiers.

Here is another queer punishment which never has been removed from the statute book. If you are motoring or driving in England beware lest you run over anybody, for if you do so and cause his death your motorcar or carriage can be confiscated. Even a falling tree that caused the death of a human being can be taken from its owner.

The strangest punishment which still survives under modern law in England is that of "outlawry." Only a few years ago—in 1906 to be exact—a lawyer charged with forging a check was "outlawed" in the Glasgow high court. By this sentence the person of the accused is declared forfeit. He cannot bear testimony in a court nor sue nor defend an action. He cannot act on a jury nor vote at an election nor act as tutor or guardian to another person. If any one robs him he has no redress. If any one kills him it seems rather doubtful if that person can be hanged.—Pearson's Weekly.

One of New York's Tiny Streets.

New York has some queer streets, and Edgar street is one of them. It has been built up solidly on both sides from end to end for generations, but it has no numbers, and no one lives on it, and no one does business there. The letter carrier never stops. It has only one door, and that is kept locked and never used. Fifteen long steps take one along the sidewalk from one end to the other. Queer little thoroughfare is Edgar street, lying between Broadway and the Hudson, below Rector street, in oldest old New York.—New York World.

"Crabbed Age and Youth."

THEY LIKE PRISON LIFE.

A Class of Persons In Japan Who Try to Break Into Jail.

In Japan there are people who make sham confessions in order to obtain a period of the comparative warmth and comfort of a Japanese prison. The Japan Mail says: "The police slang of the capital has words to describe and distinguish these persons. 'Meshibai,' or the rice criminal, will steal some small article from a shop front in such a way as to be seen doing it. He then makes a bolt of it, pursued by the master of the shop, or some faithful kozo, but presently allows himself to be caught and handed to the police. He has to 'do time' for his pretended theft, but his rice is secured for a period, and when that period has elapsed he will allow himself to be caught again.

"The 'unandon,' or 'eelbowl' criminal, is wilier than the one just mentioned. He does not actually commit a crime, such as will put him into the convict side of the prison, but allows himself to be found looking in suspicious places, underneath the broad verandas of a temple, or in the garden of a private house. He gets into prison all right, but he secures the more generous treatment of the house of detention, which is to the fare of the convict jail what a dish of eels is to a bowl of plain rice.

"The 'kuruma' is a criminal who makes a sham confession in order to get a free railway ride. Recently a man gave himself up to the police in Sendai as the perpetrator of the crime. He was brought to Tokyo and his story investigated. It was found to be a pure fabrication."

CALLED ON GOVERNOR

Labor Men Discuss Compensation With Brumbaugh.

Harrisburg, Feb. 9.—When a committee of labor men called on Governor Brumbaugh at the executive mansion and asked that he support a workmen's compensation law modeled after the Ohio act, the governor stated that there are three elements that should be given consideration above everything else.

"First," he said, "to enact a law that would make compensation positive without any possibility of an employer avoiding the liability; second, to expedite payments and prevent litigation in the courts, and, third, to conserve life and limb by making the employer put in adequate safety devices, thereby preventing accidents and the necessity of paying compensation.

In connection with this third element, Governor Brumbaugh commented as follows: "Gentlemen, you of course recognize the fact that it is far better that the state prevent accidents through good laws than to merely provide compensation to a man when injured. Better that he be not injured at all."

There were forty-eight labor men in this delegation, and it is the first time that so many toilers visited the executive mansion in a body. When the governor entered the room he said to his visitors: "Gentlemen, make yourself at home; this is not my house any more than it is yours. I'm but a temporary occupant."

Volcanoes In New Zealand.

New Zealand's volcanic phenomena are accounted for in the Maori legends in the following manner: One of the first chiefs to reach New Zealand from the ancient home in Hawaiki brought with him a trusted follower, Ngauruhoe, with whom he set out to examine the country. When they reached the highest peak they suffered much from cold, and the chief shouted to his sisters on a far distant island to send some of the fire which had been brought in canoes from Hawaiki. This fire immediately came in a southwesterly wind, subterraneously bursting forth on the summit where the chief and his follower sat freezing. It arrived in time to save the life of the former, but not that of Ngauruhoe, whose name is commemorated in the highest peak of the Tongariro mountains. Geysers, hot springs and fumaroles mark the course of the subterranean passage. Mount Egmont stands in solitary grandeur because he, as one of the three giants, quarreled with the other two, Tongariro and Ruapehu, and had to fly to the coast to escape their wrath.

America Not So Big.

On the steamer off the west coast of Africa I picked up an acquaintance with an Englishman who had come aboard somewhere along the Gold Coast. After the usual commonplaces he drawled, "You are an American?"

I admitted the soft impeachment.

"Did you ever meet an Englishman over there named Jessup?" was his next query.

I always take Englishmen seriously, so instead of rolling my eyes and explaining what a large country America is, I told him the truth about all the Jessups I happened to know. There were only two—one was a steel agent in New York city and the other was a Y. M. C. A. secretary in Summit, N. J.

"That's the chap," said the Briton, unexpectedly. "He used to live next door to me in Birmingham."

And he did, you know. And I couldn't keep up my pretense that America was a big country after that.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Eugene Field and Children.

"It was children whom Field loved best," says Miss Hildegarde Hawthorne in St. Nicholas, "and he would take all sorts of trouble to make a child happy. His room was crowded with toys, queer dolls, funny little mechanical toys that ran about or bored or nodded strange heads or performed tricks. His study door was never shut to a child, and he had many child friends his family knew nothing of. His brother tells how a few hours after his death a little crippled boy came to the door and asked if he might go up and see Mr. Field. He was taken into the room where the gentle, much loved figure lay and left there. In a little while he came limping downstairs, the tears streaming down his cheeks, and went silently away, known to nobody there."

No Explanations Needed.

The lady jury was out longer than the importance of the case would warrant.

The judge grew impatient.

"What's the trouble in there?" he said to the bailiff.

"I'll see," replied the bailiff.

"Hold on," cried the judge. "Tell 'em if there's any knotty points about the case that bother them they should appeal to me."

"Yes, your honor."

The bailiff goes to the door of the jury room and returns.

"Well?"

"They ain't got to the case yet, your honor. They're still discussin' th' plaintiff's clothes."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The High Seas.

The "high seas" is a term signifying the entire marine expanse, so far as it is not the exclusive property of any particular country. The rule of international law is that every country bordering on the sea has the exclusive sovereignty over such sea to the extent of three miles from its shore, but all beyond and which is not within three miles of some other country is open or common to all countries.

His First Case.

The young attorney had hung out his shingle but a week before, and when a friend met him in the corridor of the courthouse the friend exclaimed: "Ah, ha! Have you landed a client already?"

"Yes," replied the young attorney. "My tailor is suing me."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Sharpening a Worn File.

"When a file gets dull," said the master mechanic, "you can restore its effectiveness by pouring a little nitric acid over it. This roughens the raised parts and deepens the sunk parts so that it will again file your nails or cut a bar of iron."

Paradoxical Energy.

"People who speak English do funny things, don't they?"

"How so?"

"Why, they put stops on organs to make them go."—Baltimore American.

"Before or after she is dressed to go out?" queried the simple mug.—Philadelphia Record.

Our First Theater.

In 1752 the first theater in the United States was opened in the colony of Virginia at old Williamsburg. The originator was an English actor, William Hallam, Sr., who brought his own company from over seas and presented "The Merchant of Venice" as the initial performance. The idea spread rapidly, and soon New York, Philadelphia and the other leading communities of colonial America each had its theater. While the Virginia playhouse was the first in the United States, actors had played in the colonies before this date. The first is said to have been the English strolling player, Anthony Aston, who was known as Mat Medley. The actor and his art of that day were generally despised by the Puritanical colonists. The Massachusetts legislature passed a law shortly after amateurs had given "The Orphans" at the Coffee House in Boston in 1749 which forbade such performances, prescribing a penalty for actors and spectators alike of $25 each.

Evolution of a Name.

Cosmo Innes, in his work on surnames, quotes an instance showing the gradual transformation of a patronymic. "A respectable citizen of Dublin named Halfpenny throve in trade, so his children prevailed on him in his latter years to change the name, which they thought undignified, and this he did chiefly by dropping the last letter. He died and was buried as Mr. Hatpen. The fortune of the family did not recede, and the son of our citizen thought proper to renounce retail dealing, and at the same time looked about for a euphonious change of name. He made no scruple of dropping the unnecessary 'h.' That being done, it was easy to go into the Celtic rage, which 'The Lady of the Lake' had just raised to a great height. So he who had run the streets as little Kenny Halfpenny came out at the levees as Kenneth McAlpin, the descendant of a hundred kings."—London Chronicle.

Diplomacy.

When King Alfonso of Spain is staying at San Sebastian, says the Manchester News, he frequently goes across to Biarritz for an afternoon of recreation.

On one occasion he arrived at the station there and hailed a fiacre. The driver recognized him, and when his majesty asked what the fare was said, "For the king of Spain it will be 10 francs." The king smiled and merely paid the ordinary fare as provided by the tariff. To that amount, however, he added a tip of the usual size.

A few days later he was again in Biarritz and also took a fiacre. But on this occasion the cocher was more diplomatic. When asked the amount of the fare he replied, "Your majesty owes me nothing for the small service I have had the honor to render him." His majesty replied to this courteous speech by presenting the cabby with a 100 franc note.

Bricks From Babylon.

There is a law in the Turkish empire prohibiting the exportation of relics and antiques more than 100 years old, and the fact that it is on the statute books gives rise to the common practice of offering spurious articles to the tourist. Real objects of art or of sufficient age to be of value are rarely to be purchased, and the general desire of the visitor, therefore, seems to be to obtain stones or pieces of clay from the sites of ancient ruins or bricks with inscriptions. The former can probably be obtained, but they are practically valueless, as one piece of clay from Babylon is quite like another from Musol. Bricks from either of these places that are known to be genuine are unobtainable.

With Military Honors.

It is not universally known what is meant by a funeral "with full military honors." In such a funeral the coffin is borne on a gun carriage.

If the dead soldier was an infantryman his sword and helmet rest on his coffin.

At the funeral of a cavalry soldier his sword and helmet are fastened to the saddle of his horse, which is led immediately behind the gun carriage, and his top boots, with spurs attached, are fastened in the stirrups, with the toes pointing backward.

A firing party, drawn, if possible, from the deceased's regiment, fire three volleys over the grave, and the "Last Post" is then sounded by buglers.—Pearson's Weekly.

Why He Didn't Cry.

Mother—Goodness, how did you hurt your finger so?

Little Son—With a hammer.

"When?"

"A good while ago."

"I didn't hear you cry."

"No, mother. I thought you were out."—Stray Stories.

Wisdom.

The best tonic is fresh air.

The best restorative is sleep.

The best stimulant is exercise.

Fatigue calls for rest and not the spur.—Wisconsin State Journal.

One View of Golf.

"Pop, what is golf?"

"Golf, my son, is just the same as work, except that you get paid for work."—Pittsburgh Press.

WOMAN WEAK AND NERVOUS

Finds Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Creston, Iowa.—"I suffered with female troubles from the time I came into womanhood until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I would have pains if I overworked or lifted anything heavy, and I would be so weak and nervous and in so much misery that I would be prostrated. A friend told me what your medicine had done for her and I tried it. It made me strong and healthy and our home is now happy with a baby boy. I am very glad that I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and do all I can to recommend it."—Mrs. A. B. BOSCAMP, 504 E. Howard Street, Creston, Iowa.

Tons of Roots and Herbs

are used annually in the manufacture of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is known from ocean to ocean as the standard remedy for female ills.

For forty years this famous root and herb medicine has been pre-eminently successful in controlling the diseases of women. Merit alone could have stood this test of time.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

MRS. LUCINDA FERGUSON DIES AT HOME NEAR BENTLEYVILLE

Mrs. Lucinda Ferguson aged 78 years, one of the well-known women of the Bentleyville section, died Sunday morning at 7 o'clock at the home of her daughter Mrs. U. G. Ames two miles north of here. Death came after a lingering illness caused by the infirmities of her advanced years.

Mrs. Ferguson had lived in that vicinity for the greater part of her life. She was a consistent Christian being a member of the Presbyterian church.

Mrs. Ames is the only surviving child. Mrs. Maria Degarmo of Ginger Hill, a sister.

Funeral services were held at the Ames home Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Interment was in the Pigeon Creek Presbyterian cemetery.

HARD BLOWS HANDED LIQUOR

to hell selling them booze. There is nothing that I will fight longer and harder than the liquor traffic and it makes me sick to see some peanut merchant running around saying that it will hurt his business. It wouldn't make so much difference about hurting the business if it were your own son or daughter going to hell because of the saloon. It will be awful though to see it go; just think of all the bankrupt shoestring businesses that will be in town, and all because the city went dry. Just think of the vacant houses that there would be if this city went dry. I tell you that the man who says that closing the saloon will hurt business is attached to the liquor business in some way. Any man who must have a saloon next door to his business to build up the business, is nothing but a saloonkeeper himself and the druggist who sells liquor is nothing but a whitewashed skunk.

The Romans had a law that men guilty of certain offences should be strapped to a corpse. None could give them drink or food and they had to walk the streets with this decayed body strapped to them until they died of hunger and thirst, and the fumes generating from the decaying flesh. You say, "Yes but how does this apply to the saloon business?" I'll tell you. There are in America today, a million wives and children who are strapped to the dead bodies of drunken, dissolute, husbands, bodies dead in trespasses and sins, moral lepers, forced to drag their way through life, bearing this sort of a burden and staggering along until they totter into the grave as the victims of the Roman law did. That is how it applies and you know it. You may say that I am fanatical. Have you a boy or girl? Every fifth boy in the United States goes to a drunkards grave. Every tenth girl goes to the brothel. Have you a boy or girl to put into these places? Today the liquor business is calling for 2,000,000 boys. What does it want with them? Why to fill drunkards graves within the next 20 years. The drunkards last year walking five abreast would make a procession 30 miles long. I tell you the time has come when the police and political protection ought to be taken from the saloon and the drunken father and be given to the boys and mothers. I am not against the saloon keeper but I am against the damnable business. I am not against the bedbug but I am against his way of making a living. But some men's standards are so low in this town that they would import the saloon and the brothel and the gamblers and the hangers-on of vice, just in order that they might sell a few goods and get a few dirty dollars from that class of people.

Satan's Defeat.

Evangelist Minges spoke Sunday night on "Satan's Defeat," drawing the lesson from the temptation of Jesus, showing that how time after time, Satan's attacks were repulsed. He said: Satan took Jesus up into the mountain and showed him all the kingdoms of the earth, the kingdoms of literature and art and everything else that was attractive. He said, "all these will I give unto thee if thou wilt fall down and worship me." Jesus turned the wizard's gold to dross with the statement "get thee behind me Satan."

Here the evangelist made a strong appeal for the business men and professional men to beware of Satan and said Satan will say to some of you fellows "I will give you an extra hunderd if you will fall down and worship me." Tomorrow some physician may be tempted, Satan offering them a fancy price for doing something unlawful. Young ladies, Satan is saying, "I'll give you the pleasures of the ballroom floor, if you will fall down and worship me." The pleasures of sin are sweet for a season but the wages of sin are death. "Why will ye die? I beseech you in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, be strong men and women for Christ. "Quit ye like me, be strong." When the tempter comes to you, say in the words of the Master, "get thee behind be Satan." The last temptation came to Jesus in the garden when He sweat blood. But an angel came and strengthened Him and He went on to the cross. His last words were "It is finished." He had finished the work that He was sent to do. Let us finish the work that God has given us to do in spite of all the temptations of Satan.
